

The victim vomited and developed a fever.

Bleeding under the skin caused dark blotches all over the body.

In most cases the person dies. Sometimes the buboes burst releasing a foul smelling black liquid to ooze out. When this happened the victim usually lived.

The disease attacks the nervous system causing spasms and terrible pain.

Painful swellings called buboes appear in the armpits and groin. They were usually the size of an egg but could be as large as an apple.

The victim vomited and developed a fever.

Bleeding under the skin caused dark blotches all over the body.

In most cases the person dies. Sometimes the buboes burst releasing a foul smelling black liquid to ooze out. When this happened the victim usually lived.

The disease attacks the nervous system causing spasms and terrible pain.

Painful swellings called buboes appear in the armpits and groin. They were usually the size of an egg but could be as large as an apple.